

During Cuban Crisis
Fighting Strength
Revealed By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aroused United States mustered about 340,000 fighting men, thousands of war planes and hundreds of Navy ships to deal with the Communist threat in Cuba, it was disclosed Thursday.
Five Army paratroop, infantry and tank divisions and parts of two Marine divisions were ticketed to invade Cuba if a decision had been made to go that far.
The Defense Department released a roundup of Cuban crisis actions which gave a picture of the scope of military preparations. Some important details were kept secret.
Roundup
The roundup showed, among other things, that:
—More than 100,000 officers and men in the Strategic Army Corps were placed on advance alert status in mid-October, during the early stages of the crisis.
The Pentagon identified only the 1st Armored Division as in the alerted force, but informed sources said four other divisions also were primed for possible movement.
These were the 82nd Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N.C., the 101st Airborne at Ft. Campbell, Ky., the 2nd Infantry Division at Ft. Benning, Ga., and the 1st Infantry at Ft. Riley, Kan.
—Perhaps 12,000 Marines were afloat with the fleet off Cuba or at the Guantanamo Naval Base in eastern Cuba. Most were from the 2nd Marine Division based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and the remainder were flown or moved by ship from the 1st Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, Calif.
Marines To Leave
The Pentagon disclosed Thursday night that some of the Marines rushed to Guantanamo at the outset of the crisis will begin to leave next week. A spokesman gave no totals or identification of the units which will depart.
—The Air Force's Strategic Air Command —SAC— mounted what was described as a "massive airborne alert" of many of its 600 B52 heavy bombers, with the remainder of the B52s and about 1,000 B47 nuclear bombers kept on ground alert ready to take off within 15 minutes notice.
The department estimated 100,000 SAC personnel, including air crews, maintenance and armament specialists, plus 20,000 security police and 6,000 refueling experts, were involved.
The roundup showed for the first time that SAC bombers joined Navy patrol planes in keeping watch on the 2,000 ships that were playing the Atlantic during the U.S. blockade. These bombers brought back several thousand feet of reconnaissance film.
—Perhaps 6,000 fliers and ground crew of the Tactical Air Command and the Air Defense Command were moved into the southeastern United States, mainly to Florida.
Number Of Planes Unlisted
The Defense Department did not list numbers of planes or men, but the Tactical Air Command has said it deployed almost 1,000 aircraft into that area during the Cuban crisis.
The F100, F104, F105 jet fighters—all capable of flying at better than 1,000 miles an hour—would have been used to sweep the Cuban skies clean of enemy aircraft and to attack missile bases and anti-aircraft batteries if further action had been ordered.
These planes, plus others from the Navy and Marine Corps, flew combat patrols over Cuban waters to cover the unarmed reconnaissance aircraft.
—The crews of 144 intercontinental ballistic missiles were put on special alert.
Three Navy Task Forces
—Three Navy task forces, comprising more than 180 ships and hundreds of aircraft, maintained the blockade and were in position to land Marines and knock out Cuban shore strong points. The nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise headed a force ready to defend Guantanamo.
The statement listed more than 85,000 men aboard Atlantic fleet vessels in the Cuban operations area. In addition, undisclosed thousands of Navy and Marine airmen and ground crewmen were stationed at shore bases along the East Coast.
The Pentagon's report listed 55 merchant ships as having passed through the quarantine from the time it was clamped on at dawn Oct. 24 until it was lifted the evening of Nov. 20.
These ships were allowed to pass, the Pentagon said, "after their cargoes had been determined to contain no prohibited material." No ships were turned back or found to carry any offensive weapons, it said.

Over Kashmir Area
India, Pakistan
End Quarrel

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India and Pakistan agreed Friday to seek an end to their bitter quarrel over Kashmir, permitting Indian military forces to concentrate on the Himalayan border conflict with Red China.
The Red Chinese accused India of armed provocation by sending troop reinforcements to the mountain cease-fire line and indicated Communist guns were still at the ready despite a Peking promise to start pulling back Saturday.
India's 15-year dispute with Pakistan had become troublesome for Indian armed forces in the undeclared border war with the Chinese. India kept large numbers of troops on the Pakistani border against the possibility of a renewal of fighting over Kashmir.
Move Troops Out
Informed sources reported, however, that India already has pulled out most of its troops on the Pakistani border and shipped them to Himalayan battle areas.
The agreement with Pakistan for resumption of negotiations in the near future will help strengthen India's hand further for any renewal of fighting with the Chinese. It now can relax its guard on the Pakistani border.
The agreement may also result in a diplomatic blow to Peking. The Red Chinese have been feeding on anti-American criticism in Pakistan over arms shipments to India and have been making promises of deals in an effort to steer Pakistan out of the Western camp.
A 91-word communique announcing the agreement came after the U.S. assistant secretary of state, W. Averell Harriman, and Duncan Sandys, Britain's secretary of Commonwealth relations, went through a series of conferences with Indian Prime Minister Nehru and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.
The Kashmir dispute has been defying all attempts at solution since both countries became independent in 1947 and almost immediately fought an undeclared war for possession of Kashmir.
Nehru and Ayub have been reluctant to talk out the problem. But the urgency created by Communist Chinese attacks on both ends of the Himalayan border apparently brought Nehru and Ayub to take a new look at their dispute.
Overtures Received
Pakistan had been receiving overtures from the Red Chinese for settlement of border problems of its own with Peking. The Communists went so far as to offer to sign a nonaggression pact with Pakistan in an attempt to woo Pakistan away from the West.
Pakistanis sharply criticized the flow of U.S. and British military aid to India, claiming the weapons could be turned on Pakistani forces.
Harriman told a news conference in Rawalpindi, the Pakistani capital, however, that India's applies to the whole Southeast Asian region, including Pakistan.
In this light, Harriman said, Pakistan stands to benefit from arms aid to India.
Since the Red Chinese imposed a cease-fire Nov. 21, India has been rushing Western arms and reinforcements up the mountain sides to bolster units pushed back by Communist advances since the opening of an offensive Oct. 20.

JFK's Sister
Gets The Book

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Patricia Kennedy Lawford, sister of the President, will be visiting—under court order—a child care center named for her late brother sometime during the next month.
Mrs. Lawford, wife of actor Peter Lawford, was ordered to visit the Santa Monica facility for a traffic violation. The judge told her to write a report on children being treated for auto accident injuries at the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Center in St. John's Hospital.
Municipal Judge W. Blair Gibbons also ordered Mrs. Lawford to look in on an auto wrecking yard. She must write a report within two weeks on the smashed cars there.
These were conditions of probation.

Blair Gibbons ordered her to visit children injured in traffic accidents and to make a report on wrecked cars observed at a wrecking yard. Sentence was imposed after she pleaded guilty to a charge of driving with an expired driver's license. (AP Wirephoto)

Kennedy, Mikoyan Confer On Cuba;
Report No Genuine Progress Made

Pope Is Reported
Improved

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ailing Pope John XXIII was reported feeling much better Thursday night in his bout with anemia and even got out of bed for a few hours and walked about his apartment in the apostolic palace, high Vatican sources reported.
The Vatican had appealed to Roman Catholics around the world to pray for the 81-year-old pontiff, who was proving a restless patient for his doctors.
The encouraging report that Pope John was able to get up and had no fever came after a communique disclosed officially for the first time that he had been provided by long-standing stomach trouble.
Concern Indicated
The tone of the communique clearly indicated concern about the Pope's illness among Vatican officials. But the aged ruler of the Roman Catholic Church told his doctors—trying to persuade him to take it easy—that he wanted to get back to work.
The communique made no mention of prostate trouble nor say specifically how serious the pontiff's condition is regarded.
After two days of conflicting reports about the Pope's health, the Vatican issued a statement saying doctors had advised him to curtail his activities.
The statement referred to an "accentuating of symptoms of a gastropathy, for which the Pope has been for some time under necessary medical and dietary treatment, and which has provoked a rather intense anemia."
Personal Physician
Pope John's personal physician —Prof. Antonio Gasbarrini, a specialist in internal medicine who is just a year younger than the pontiff—called at the apostolic palace in the morning and again in the afternoon.
Gasbarrini came here Wednesday from his home in Bologna. Another physician, Prof. Piero Mazzoni, was remaining at the apostolic palace almost constantly.

Two-Day Walkout Ends

Lockheed Workers
Return To Jobs

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Striking union workers at giant Lockheed Aircraft Corp. returned to their jobs Thursday at government request, ending a two-day walkout. But they said the dispute that caused the strike was far from over.
The work-resumption agreement came after President Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley Law Wednesday and set up a special board to study the months-long contract squabble.
The board was ordered to report to the President by Monday its findings in the bitter battle involving critical defense work.
Both management and the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists avoided direct mention of the dispute's central issue, the union shop, when announcing the work resumption.
But they left little doubt of its continued importance.
Lockheed vice president John E. Canaday, told a news conference the company feels it will win its fight not to put the question to a vote. The union shop, if approved by a two-thirds majority of all workers, would make it necessary for them all to join the union. A presidential commission recommended earlier in the year that the issue be put to a vote.
The Same Issue
"This same issue was the major issue in three (Lockheed) strikes before," Canaday said, "and agreement was reached anyway."
Of the major aerospace firms, only Lockheed has refused to submit the union shop issue to a vote. North American Aviation, General Dynamics and Ryan Aeronautical agreed to the vote and their employees failed to give it the necessary two-thirds approval, although they did achieve a majority.
Robert R. Simpson, IAM international representative on the scene to coordinate negotiations, predicted the workers would strike again at the end of a possible 80-day cooling off period if the union shop issue was not submitted to a vote.
Workers Go Back
The IAM agreed to send its members back to work temporarily under their old contract. The average base pay under the old agreement was $2.95 hourly.
E. R. White, general vice president of the union, issued a statement that "We are reminding the government and Lockheed that the dispute is still very much unresolved and that unrest will continue to plague work areas until a fair and equitable agreement is reached."
Under the Taft-Hartley Law, President Kennedy will wait for a report from his special committee and then decide whether to ask a federal court for an injunction.

Both Sides Will Continue Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan conferred at length Thursday on issues remaining in the way of a final Cuban settlement, but White House sources reported they made no genuine progress.
For about 3 1/2 hours, Kennedy and Mikoyan concentrated on problems stemming from differences over a final agreement on Cuba.
Afterward, a White House spokesman and Mikoyan both said representatives of both sides would continue negotiating in New York. As Mikoyan put it, they would negotiate "to finally settle the Cuban question."
If he meant a final settlement was in immediate view, U.S. officials were less optimistic.
Common Interest Matters
White House press secretary Pierre Salinger issued this statement: "The President and Mr. Mikoyan reviewed a number of matters of common interest, with the principal attention focused on the problem of Cuba. They agreed that, as a follow-up to this meeting, conversations would continue in New York between Ambassador (Adlai) Stevenson, Mr. (John J.) McCloy, and Mr. (Vassily) Kuznetsov."
The statement referred to the men directly involved in working out a Cuban solution. The United States says any satisfactory solution must include inspection on the ground in Cuba to verify that all Soviet offensive weapons have been removed and no new missiles or jet planes will be delivered.
No Real Progress
Government sources said no real progress had been made on individual issues, paramount among them the lack of agreement on U.N. inspection on the site in Cuba.
These sources said that, from the U.S. standpoint, the meeting provided no surprises. This could have reflected a measure of disappointment. The President has recently described this period as possibly an important turning point in the direction the world is moving.
The atmosphere in the unusually lengthy meeting was described as frank and businesslike, lacking any air of tension. U.S. officials retained the belief that some progress had been made on the Cuban problem before Mikoyan arrived at the White House late in the afternoon. But they said afterward a number of points have yet to be resolved.
Little Time Spent
Kennedy and Mikoyan spent a little time on differences between Washington and Moscow on nuclear test and disarmament agreements, and dwelt briefly on the situation in Laos. White House informants maintained there was no discussion of Berlin.

"We Have Agreed"
Mikoyan said, "the President will issue certain instructions to his representatives in New York, and our government will issue instructions to ours, to carry on negotiations regarding final settlement of the Cuban question."
The meeting was surprisingly long, lending support to advance indications that Kennedy wanted to probe into other areas of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union. Either that, or Mikoyan gave an extremely detailed report on his 24 days in Havana, where he met often with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.
Mikoyan was accompanied to the White House by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.
Aides said Kennedy still is intent on winding up the Cuban dispute, which has yet to receive a formal diplomatic solution.
Mikoyan presented the first chance for a high-level U.S.-Soviet personal exchange since the Cuban crisis. It represented Kennedy's highest-level contact with the Soviets since he met Premier Khrushchev in Vienna, Austria, in June 1961.

Current Thinking
According to current administration thinking, East-West relations are headed for a new turn in the wake of U.S. firmness on Cuba and Khrushchev's consequent withdrawal of his offensive weapons there. The Moscow-Peking split, Red China's attack on India and other factors are seen also as part of a pattern of change.
U.S. authorities are wary, however, of predicting where the new path will lead. They hope to gain significant clues during Mikoyan's two-day stay.
The little, black-mustached Armenian, widely rated as the No. 2 man in the Soviet Union, was peacefully noncommittal as he arrived at Andrews Air Force Base aboard a Soviet transport plane.
He expressed hope to his greetees, headed by Llewellyn Thompson, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, that his visit "will be pleasant and useful." Thompson now is the State Department's top adviser on Soviet affairs.
He whisked off to lunch at Thompson's home before going to the White House.

Hoffa's
Lawyer
Resigns

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Teamster President James R. Hoffa said his long-time legal counsel and friend, George S. Fitzgerald, resigned as union attorney Thursday, but the lawyer said he was fired.
"We didn't fire him," Hoffa told a newsman. "He resigned."
Fitzgerald, interviewed in Detroit by telephone by Nashville newsmen, denied he quit.
Hoffa said earlier Thursday the Detroit News was in error in its copyrighted article stating Fitzgerald was fired following a heated exchange outside the courtroom where Hoffa is being tried on a $1-million conspiracy charge.
Fitzgerald told a newsman for the Nashville Tennessean Thursday night, "There was no talk of my resigning at any time."
He added, "It happened just like the paper said it happened."
Fitzgerald, a former Michigan Democratic national committeeman, has been a Teamsters attorney since 1955.
He testified under subpoena last Monday as a government witness. The News said the heat exchange with Hoffa followed.
Hoffa said Fitzgerald's resignation had been under discussion for several weeks.
"He wanted to operate an insurance business and have other clients," Hoffa said. "I had told him we wanted an attorney that could work for the union full time."
Hoffa said he received Fitzgerald's resignation in the mail Thursday.
Hoffa is accused by the federal government of sharing with the late Owen Brennan, a Teamster vice president, in an alleged $1 million payoff.
Hoffa and Brennan allegedly were paid off through a trucking firm their wives owned to insure labor peace for another trucking firm.

Nine Persons Die In Fire
That Levels Frame House

RENOVO, Pa. (AP) — The parents and seven of their 10 children perished Thursday in an early morning fire which destroyed their big white frame house in the village of Keating.
Dead were Walter N. Brown, 41-year-old power shovel operator for a farm-riding concern; his wife, Wilma, 37, and seven children ranging in age from 15 to 4.
Three other children, one of them married, live in small communities of the area, a remote section in the northwestern tip of Clinton County.
Bear hunters discovered the fire and the circumstances were such that first arrivals could not be certain whether there actually was anyone inside the building, which by that time was a raging inferno.
They sent to the nearby community of Cook's Run and roused a 19-year-old son, Charles Brown. Charles looked at the two cars parked in front and confirmed that members of his family were all at home.
During the forenoon, seven of the nine bodies were recovered. Renovo undertaker John R. Morjarty said it was impossible to tell from the position of the bodies whether they had died as they slept or whether there was one last-minute effort to escape.
Investigators said the whole house had collapsed into the basement in the last stages of the raging fire. By the time two fire trucks from Renovo reached the scene, about 12 miles away, the eight-room house had been reduced to flickering rubble.
One of the bear hunters, John Hutchinson of Faust Valley, near Greensburg, Pa., said he and a hunting companion, Thomas Roth of Mechanicsburg, had spent the evening at the village hotel.
They were driving back to their camp in Hutchinson's station wagon at 1 a. m. when they noticed smoke and a tongue of flame at the two-story frame house on the outskirts of Keating.
Hutchinson went inside while Roth went back to the hotel to spread the alarm.
Hutchinson said he went into all of the rooms on the first floor, calling loudly, then went to the second floor landing.
Hutchinson said a light was burning in the hallway. He stood on the landing calling loudly several times, but there was no response. Hutchinson said he became convinced there was nobody home and retreated in the face of the mounting heat, smoke and flames.
Investigators, groping for a cause of the tragedy, said it appeared to have started from the front of the home where there was a coal or wood-burning heater.
The seven children who died in the flames were: Marlene, 15; Leona, 13; Daniel, 10; Susan, 8; Linda, 7; Nancy, 5; and Bradley, 4.
The surviving members of the family besides Charles are two daughters, Sandra, 17, who has been staying with a family at Westport, and Mrs. Edwin Bailey Jr. of Tamarack.

Pauline Scott
Is Saved By A Miracle

LONDON (AP)—The editor of a medical magazine said Thursday a miracle may have saved the life of Pauline Scott.
In an editorial in the Family Doctor, addressed to doctors all over Britain, Dr. Harvey Flack said:
"Cling to your scientific upbringing and only one conclusion is possible. The original diagnosis must have been wrong.
"Move from science to the humanities and you wonder. Was the diagnosis right and the end result modified completely by faith and prayer or good fortune?
"I don't know, and I know of nobody who does."
Today, Pauline Scott is a healthy, happy 15-year-old girl. Six years ago doctors agreed she was doomed with an incurable blood disease.
In desperation, her doctor took her to a religious shrine and urged her to pray and ask for a blessing.
Reluctantly, the sick child agreed.
"Where next I saw her," said Dr. Gabriel Fielding in an article in the Family Doctor, "three days after her trip to the shrine, she was in an oxygen tent."
After a blood transfusion, she was given only a few weeks to live.
Then, mysteriously, she began to get better.

Initial Approval Given To Cooks Training Plan

JOHN P. DOUGHERTY, manager of the local Pennsylvania State Employment Office, announced yesterday that initial approval has been given to a training proposal to train cooks under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

The proposed training is scheduled to be given at the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools beginning shortly after the first of the year with classes held from 4:00 p. m. to 10:00 p. m. Monday through Friday. The course is expected to last 26 weeks.

Dougherty stated that preference will be given to unemployed applicants who are heads of families and who have had at least 3 years work experience. Under the Manpower Development Act such persons will receive training allowances of $33.00 per week for the duration of the training provided they satisfactorily meet the training requirements of the school.

Polish Guard Who Escaped From Nazis Talks At Bangor

BANGOR — A Polish border guard who fled from Nazi invaders at the start of World War II, was captured when the volunteer Polish army he joined in France was overrun at the Maginot Line, and who later slipped away from the infamous Stalag 17-B prison camp in time to join a military mission team caring for displaced persons and war prisoners as the Allies invaded France, recounted his adventures for the Bangor Exchange Club Wednesday night.

Ferdinand (Fred) Syzta, a member of the Eastern Exchange Club and a naturalized American citizen since 1958, was the speaker. The dinner meeting was held at White Horse Tavern, near Wind Gap, with President Millard Gleim presiding.

Instrumental in bringing Syzta and his wife to this country were an Eastern member of the Women's Army Corps and the late Col. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia. All four were members of Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters corps during the German occupation in the French and British governments for his services with the volunteer Polish divisions of their armies.

Arthur Baker, program chairman, introduced the speaker. He asked members to be prepared for a gift exchange at the Dec. 12 meeting. Samuel Hicks distributed Diners' Club tickets for the project the club is co-sponsoring with the Blue Mountain Control Center.

With election slated next month, nomination of five Exchangees for three-year terms on the club's Blue Valley Farm Show directorate were announced by Donald Spry. The nominees are Raymond A. Traves, Millard Gleim, Anthony Ponturo, Alan Ryder and Carl Gilbert.

Pottsville Man Enters Plea In Gambling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Matthew Whitaker cited by the federal government as a link in a nationwide telephone hookup between gamblers, pleaded innocent Thursday to violating the federal anti-racketeering law and attempting to evade excise taxes.

The chunky, nattily dressed Pottsville cigar store owner and real estate agent entered his pleas before U.S. District Judge John W. Lord Jr.

He will probably come to trial in January, the next term of court.

Whitaker, president of the Mattson Realty Co. of Pottsville, was arrested last March, climaxing a months-long investigation of gambling in Schuylkill County.

In June he was indicted on eight counts of interstate and foreign travel or transportation in aid of racketeering enterprises.

He waived indictment today on the additional eight count charge of attempting to evade $10,207 in excise taxes the government says he owes for wagers placed with him in 1961 and 1962.

The probe of gambling in Schuylkill County started after the Justice Department told a Senate subcommittee last year that Pottsville was a center of "layoff betting."

Scranton Bridge Is Reopened

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Linden Street bridge, one of the largest in the city and connecting east and west Scranton, was reopened Thursday after completion of emergency repairs. The bridge was closed Tuesday by order of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission after an inspection disclosed it appeared unsafe.

In reopening the bridge, authorities stated that it can be used by automobiles and light truck and pedestrian traffic, until further repairs are made later or it is decided to build a new bridge.

Closing of the bridge has resulted in congested traffic in several sections.

The course is designed to train persons in commercial cooking and will include both classroom instruction and practical training in cafeterias and hotel kitchens. The proposed training has been approved by the Local Manpower Advisory Training Committee, The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau and several area major hotels.

It is expected that final approval of the program will be forthcoming from the state and national levels of the Department of Labor and Industry and the Department of Health and Welfare shortly.

The course is open to both male and female applicants and the basic objective of the course is to train applicants in the overall basic requirements necessary to prepare foodstuffs. Lawrence Evaluates Results Of Election

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence predicted Thursday that Pennsylvania Democrats would recapture control of the state legislature by 1964 and the governor's office two years later.

"I firmly believe with President Kennedy's continued popularity we'll elect a Democratic assembly within two years," Lawrence declared at his first news conference since the Nov. 6 election.

"And I feel the Republicans will be limited to a single term in the governor's chair, too," he added firmly.

The GOP took over both the House and Senate in the election—winning a paper-thin margin of 108-101, with one vacancy, in the House, and a 27-23 edge in the Senate.

But Lawrence noted that the Democrats beaten in the House election lost by only a handful of votes, while Gov.-elect William W. Scranton rolled up a plurality approaching half a million votes.

The governor spent almost the entire news conference, talking politics, touching on such subjects as the election, the role of the Democratic party as a minority and his own future.

He attributed the party's defeat in the November balloting to a desire on the part of the people to vote the ins out—a trend, he said, that was noticeable across the country.

He also expressed some fear over the tendency of people to split their votes.

"I'm just a little bit fearful of the getting away from party responsibility," he declared. "I think it's a dangerous situation for the future. This country was built on party responsibility."

As for the Democratic party in the role of a minority, Lawrence had this advice:

"In the legislature, we must not become obstructionists, because that's one of the things that I just cannot countenance in any party. If there is legislation for the good of the state, everybody ought to be for it, and they ought to support it. I think the responsibility of the Democratic leadership is ... to remind (the Republicans) of the promises they made and to try to get them to live up to them."

Lawrence said he wants to go back to Pittsburgh, to spend some time with his family and friends.

"It hasn't been offered to me," he said to questions about rumors concerning the possibility of his becoming postmaster general of the United States.

Praises Goddard

Lawrence also said Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of forests and waters, is "the best employee Pennsylvania ever had."

There has been speculation that Goddard would be retained in the Scranton administration.

"If he's kept, he'll be kept on his abilities," said the governor. "It will be a calamity if he isn't kept."

On Jan. 1 he will present his final message to the opening session of the legislature, Lawrence said.

"There are some things I will want to suggest," he said. He declined to specify what areas he would discuss.

Mother Guilty Of Manslaughter

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 37-year-old mother of four, who pleaded guilty to second-degree manslaughter after a jury at her first-degree-murder trial reported itself deadlocked, was sentenced Thursday to serve 4 to 8 years in prison.

Mrs. Arlene Garrett of Buffalo was accused of shooting Ralph Britting, 46, last March in the apartment they had shared. She was sentenced to Westfield State Farm by Judge Burke I. Burke of Erie County Court.

Police said Mrs. Garrett had signed a statement admitting she shot Britting after he nagged her about high utility bills. During the murder trial, however, she denied the shooting. She said then she had signed the statement to protect her son, William, 18, who was in another room at the time of the slaying.

The jury had heard the murder trial reported Sept. 21 it was unable to reach a verdict.

Passaic Police Believe Maps Held Up Loan Office

PASSAIC County, N.J., authorities — on the basis of an identification by employees — believe Edward H. Maps, wanted here for murder and arson, is the man who held up a loan company office in Little Falls on Aug. 7.

Lt. Vincent J. DeSimone, a detective on the staff of John Thevos, county prosecutor said employees of the Little Falls Savings and Loan Assn. identified pictures of Maps on an FBI flyer as the armed robber who escaped with $3,000.

Not Positive

"It was not a positive identification," DeSimone said. "They said it looked like him, and we feel somewhat certain that Maps was the man. We are proceeding under that assumption."

Little Falls is situated off Route 46, near West Paterson and about five miles west of the city of Passaic.

Maps is a native of Passaic. A former U. S. Marine, he is known to be a firearms expert. The FBI has advised that he should be considered "armed and extremely dangerous."

The 40-year-old sculptor has been charged with murder, arson and illegal flight in the deaths of his wife, the former Christine Wohlbach, 23, and their four-months-old daughter, Julie Louise.

Volunteer firemen carried Mrs. Maps and the baby from the family's burning home at 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, on the night of Jan. 21. Julie Louise was pronounced dead of smoke inhalation upon arrival at the hospital. Mrs. Maps died several hours later of a fractured skull. A pathologist said she had been struck with "terrific force" by a blunt, hard object. At least 10 fires had been started throughout the house in what a coroner's jury said was an attempt to destroy evidence of the crime.

FBI Entered Case

The FBI entered the case the next day, issuing warrants charging Maps with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution. The fugitive was placed on the bureau's list of 10 most wanted criminals on June 15. Early this month, it was reported that U.S. authorities sought the aid of Mexican police when Maps' trail ended at the border between the two countries.

The report from Passaic County is the first indication of Maps' activities between the time of his disappearance and his apparent flight to the Mexican border. The escape to the South may have begun at the scene of the holdup. Little Falls police said the robber got away in a sports car which had been stolen in the vicinity of the loan company.

Maps last was seen in Stroudsburg when he and his wife and child left a friend they had been visiting about two hours before the fire was discovered in their home.

Law enforcement agencies in Monroe County have been baffled by his disappearance and the absence of any clues to his whereabouts. Hundreds who knew him were interviewed and the remotest areas of Pocono Mountains woodland were searched during the first weeks of what has been described as the most intensive manhunt in the county's history.

Two Phone Calls

Authorities cited two telephone calls from Maps, confirmed by friends, as evidence that he probably was still alive. One call was received by an East Stroudsburg woman on Jan. 22 and another by an amateur artist in East Stroudsburg two days later.

Washer Fire Alerts Stroud Fire Dept.

STROUD Township firemen yesterday were called to the James Allam property at 125 Bridge St., at 9:25 a.m., but their services were not required.

Mrs. Allam had been washing clothing and several towels became wedged in the wringer which jammed the machine and caused the motor to smoke. There was no damage, Chief Lester Rice said last night.

Rice and Harold Albert carried the washer outside, released the towels, and then started the machine. They took it back inside and the firemen returned to the firehouse.

Tactical Victory

In the last session of Congress, farmers and many sensible Congressmen succeeded in narrowly defeating the Administration's plan to hoist farm prices and at the same time institute severe controls over the nation's farmers.

Administration spokesmen then vowed that they'd be back before the new Congress and make another attempt to push the program through. Now the word from Washington is that this "must" legislation has had it and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman will leave matters much as they are now.

This represents a great victory in the farmers' battle for freedom to farm their own land and market their own crops without fear that they will be judged guilty of some infringement and heavily fined or even jailed.

It also represents a victory for taxpayers, who would have had to pay the higher subsidies, and the consumers who would have found their food bills increased.

But one such victory doesn't mean the war is over. For one thing, the present system of farm subsidies is costing $3 billion a year, or about $30 for everyone who files a tax return. And the present system adds to the retail costs of all food and clothing.

The farmer, spared additional restrictions, still hasn't gotten rid of the old restraints. He can stay outside the program if he wishes, but the Government has shown that it is not above dumping feed grains on the market to depress the price and force farmers to sign up. This could happen again next year.

Meanwhile, even with export subsidies—an additional expense to the taxpayers—we're losing out in world markets for our crops. Our supported prices are too high.

American farmers, if free, could produce many crops at lower prices than is possible in less advanced nations, and recapture these lost markets. The new Congress should pass only farm legislation which leads in this direction.

Court Test For Radar

Legalization of the use of radar equipment to check on speeders was one of the keystones of Governor Lawrence's highway safety program. The proposal met with some opposition when it was before the Legislature. Several of the lawmakers who were doubtful of the accuracy of the electronic apparatus were convinced after a series of demonstrations and the bill was passed.

The radar law has since been under fire from time to time, strangely enough in some instances from spokesmen for motor clubs in the state. We have expressed the view that by taking this stand, such organizations put themselves in the position of defending lawbreakers and thus run contrary to the feelings of a majority of their motorist members.

When the radar proposal was before the General Assembly, The Times urged its adoption. Radar at that time had already been in successful operation in a majority of states of the Union. We felt that it should prove an effective weapon against those who disregard posted speed limits on our highways, endangering the safety of law-abiding drivers. The motorist who obeys the law need have no worry about radar.

But it is probably just as well that the question of the legality of the radar act has now been carried to the State Supreme Court. A Western Pennsylvania truck driver, convicted through radar evidence of driving 60 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone, appealed to the state's highest legal tribunal, which heard the case this week. The defendant's counsel contended that the equipment is so sensitive and complicated and "subject to all the foibles of human error" that it should not be used as a medium through which a man's driver's license—representing in the trucker's case his means of livelihood—can be taken away from him. The Commonwealth insisted that the radar device has been proved accurate. The Supreme Court's decision should clear the air.

The Arrogance Of Ignorance

No one has yet devised a less than total system of censorship. The Bolsheviks established a complete news blackout and then used favored foreign correspondents to present their cause in a better light. This was done in the 20's and early 30's by all sorts of devices.

Partial censorship and self-censorship work only when a government is not adamantly intended to keep its people in ignorance. An American publisher and reporter believes himself to be permanently self-policed by good judgement and honest intentions; nevertheless, designs for ships and planes have been published, over the years, in magazines, which should not have fallen into the hands of the enemy. After the theft of the atom bomb, the attitude generally was that the Russians had swiped everything anyhow; so why not tell the American people?

"Managed News" is not censorship; it is propaganda. The assumption that a government can, in a free society, manage the news is a fallacy arising from arrogance and ignorance. President Kennedy and Assistant Secretary of Defense, Arthur Sylvester, have had some newspaper experience and they ought to know that competent newspapermen will get the story.

The "Miami Herald" has proved what a competent newspaper can do against every effort of government to manage news. My own exposure of William Wieland as identical with a Cuban newspaper writer, Montenegro, preceded a similar Congressional report by several years.

If a government really wants to establish censorship, it must destroy the free press, if it can. Arthur Sylvester has gone farther than any official has in American history. His monitor system requires that whenever a military officer talks to a newspaperman, he must immediately, in writing, report the conversation to him.

This, of course, means that no decent newspaperman will put in jeopardy a military officer who talks to an American citizen who is regarded as suspect because of his profession.

Example: Captain X reports: I met Reson of New York Times on Pennsylvania Avenue. He said: Hello. I said, Hello. He said, How's the wife? I replied: I cannot discuss military affairs with you. He said: O.K. Let's talk about the weather. I said: Sorry, the weather is a military secret because if the weather is good, we might invade Cuba on Tuesday.

Therefore, I must not discuss such matters with you. Sylvester objects. So, he left me and I noticed that he went into a telephone booth. Did I tell him anything?

Sylvester, who used to work in Newark, New Jersey, must know about the weather. He read this memorandum with care when it reached him along with 3,000 or 4,000 more. In fact, Sylvester must be the champion memorandum reader of all time. He believes in news as a weapon.

So did Hitler. It is remarkable how much is copied from Hitler. Use the radio and television to tell nothing but say it beautifully. That is a wonderful weapon because it keeps the masses both ignorant and enthusiastic. The Russians never worried about the enthusiasm of the masses; they shot down the opposition on appropriate occasions.

But Hitler liked to feel mass support and Goebbels knew how to manipulate it. That is using news as a weapon. But such weaponry must not be extended over too long a period without dramatic results. Thus, Hitler had to make a war to keep up the spirits of the ignorant. The knowledge had long before become pessimistic.

Castro used news as a weapon but he had the unfortunate habit of making himself the center of the news. The Cubans must have nothing to do, for they once listened to Castro for seven hours. It is against his animal nature.

Unfortunately for Arthur Sylvester, he does not have a captive audience. There is, first of all, the overseas radio and television, now aided by Teletar. Of course, he can send a rocket up high to kill Teletar, but there are still newspapers and magazines from abroad and one can put things together and discover what was suppressed.

'Sorry, Senor... I Can't Hear You!'

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Reporter's Notebook

One of the more amusing sights to veteran Capitol Hill observers earlier this week was the swarm (not unlike flies around a piece of sugar) of office-seekers hoping for appointive legislative posts within the orbit of the now ruling Republican legislative bloc in both the House and Senate.

The office-seeking itself was not unusual — a change on the partisan front invariably brings in the rush — but what was more amusing than anything else was the "breed" of office-seeker in this instance, which for the most part consisted of once-upon-a-time lawmakers, defeated candidates for legislative posts in the past November 6 election, or former legislative post officeholders under previous Republican rule.

The occasion of course devolved from legislative Republicans who once again gained control of both House and Senate in the November 6 runoff and who met the early part of the week to fill key House and Senate leadership posts heretofore held by previous majority-leading Pennsylvania Democrats. The scene one night at a downtown hotel lobby; something like an official "Convention of Legislative Has-beens", in the words of one quipster.

Flood-Gate Opener — Indications are that county courthouses throughout the state will mark upcoming Thursday, December 6 as another one of "those" days — for that day is the first day to register following the November 6 election, but more critically perhaps the first day to change party enrollment!

For thousands of state employees put on the payroll during the past eight years of Democratic rule, the quick change of party registration to Republican has become a somewhat frantic and wishful hope of retaining their sojourn at the public trough.

Many county courthouses already have reported a heavy tread in their direction since the November election — but officials could only inform the hopefuls to come back after December 6 when registration books once again would be open for registration changes.

The forthcoming Thursday "opening day" marks the first opportunity registrants will have had since March 26 to change party registration. Under Pennsylvania law party registrations may not be changed between the primary and general elections.

Hall and Farewell — Outgoing (officially today) Democratic House Majority Floor Leader Stephen McCann, in his legislative suite earlier this week, perhaps as succinctly as anyone summed up the status of has-been public officeholders when this reporter he offered the observation:

"Boy, once you're out of office you're sure the forgotten man!"

What impeccably dressed Greene Countess McCann was referring to was the fact that while he served as a member of the House (beginning in 1953) and majority floor leader (1959-62), fellow legislators, for example, would go out of their way to hail him. When he returned this week — no longer a lawmaker and the defeated Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor — the profuse "hailing" of yesterday had dwindled markedly, McCann noted with a wry smile. "But that's the way it is, I guess, in this business — hail and farewell," he added wistfully.

The Last Tree — Governor Lawrence will receive his last Christmas tree as Governor of Pennsylvania when the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers' Association makes its annual presentation to the chief executive on Monday. The tree, an eight-foot white pine, will be presented by Fred R. Strathmeyer, of York, president of the association. It was grown by Bert Bachert, of New Ringgold.

Monroe County's people-in-the-know are talking about Ed and Claudine Glauser's new resort out West End way.

The good word from prominent citizens is that the Glausers have themselves quite a spot at their Kresgeville honeymoon retreat.

Ed and Claudine put up "Honeymoon Hide-away" in just four short months. And folks who have been fortunate to view the marvelous building job are singing the praises of the setup.

On June 1, Honeymoon-Hide-away was just a dream on an overgrown grass field. Today the site is not only the talk of the West End but of the entire Poconos.

Leonard Randolph's new boss — Milton J. Shapp — is a Philadelphia industrialist who is head of the board of directors of Jetrol Electronics Corp.

Randolph, former Daily Record reporter and assistant to Gov. David Lawrence, was named assistant to the director of Shapp Foundation yesterday.

Shapp is a crusader for new industries and better education in Pennsylvania. So is Randolph who operated under the same theme during the administration of Lawrence.

Shapp and Randy, a Stroudsburg resident, should make a good team as they go forward together for the good of the state.

Two nice guys who will lift your spirits daily are Sandy Lee and Joe Soukup Jr. at Lee's Soda Shop, 9th St., Stroudsburg.

The two businessmen always have a kind word for the customer or the guy who just comes in to bid the time of day. In this frantic age of hustle, hustle and hustle, it is not often you run into clerks who take a minute to "chew the fat" with their customers — and still turn out the goods while in the process of shooting the so-called bull.

A couple visiting New York decided to take their twelve-year-old son to a hit musical for his birthday. They began to feel a little uneasy, however, when in the opening number a line of chorus girls appeared clad only in a scanty green and white ribbon.

As the number ended, the boy leaned over and whispered to his mother, "Mom, did you see that?"

"Did I see what?" asked the mother apprehensively.

"Those girls," replied the boy, "they're wearing our school color."

Mr. Khrushchev is urging Russians to follow the example of capitalists and just as soon as we get them to buying on the installment plan we can throw away our nuclear weapons.

The Allen-Scott Report

Nehru Seeking Tripled Arms Buildup From U.S.

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington, Nov. 30 — Prime Minister Nehru is seeking a U.S. - British commitment to help finance and arm a build-up of India's military forces to more than triple their present size.

This massive arms aid, estimated at nearly $2 billion, would boost India's force from 600,000 to 2,000,000 over the next 24 months.

This is the core of the arms request Nehru and his military advisers gave a team of high-ranking U.S. officials, headed by Assistant Secretary of State Averell Harriman.

Nehru's new military blueprint, which Harriman is expected to present to President Kennedy this weekend, calls for between 15,000 and 20,000 U.S. and British military advisers and troops to train Indian forces in the use of modern weapons. Of these advisers, an estimated 10,000 to 14,000 would come from the U.S.

The U.S. military mission, if authorized by the President, would operate in India similarly to the groups now in South Vietnam, South Korea and Turkey.

In addition to training troops, these U.S. forces would be used to organize and support new ground and air communications and supply systems for the Indian troops.

The possibility that the U. S. might send some of its crack air defense interceptor units to India was also raised during the talks, but no official request for this type of combat help was made by Nehru.

The U.S. air units would definately be needed, according to Nehru's military advisers, if the Chinese Communists should use their airforce to attack Indian cities, army supply routes, and staging areas.

Up to the cease-fire, Red China limited its airforce to reconnaissance of the battlefield area and to supply operations. India has done the same in the hope that the warfare would not escalate into bombing raids.

LOOKING FORWARD — Significantly, Nehru is taking the private position that India must now become the major military power in Asia if she is to remain independent.

He told the Harriman mission that India would go ahead with the proposed military build-up regardless of the outcome of the present cease-fire of its border war with the Chinese.

If agreeable, Nehru proposed that U.S. military aid be put on a 75-25 basis — with India paying for 25 per cent of the equipment and the U.S. furnishing the remainder free.

Nehru's list of military needs could have a big impact on U.S. economy. Many of the items — trucks, rifles, machineguns and communications equipment — if supplied from U.S. Army depots, will have to be replaced through new arms orders because of pressing U. S. military needs.

Already, General Lauris Norstad, supreme NATO commander, has cautioned the Defense Department against supplying India with more arms from U.S. military stockpiles in Europe unless immediate replacement is assured.

Nearly all of the arms rushed to India during the emergency airlift came from these reserves, which are again near the danger limit after having been built up last year during the Berlin crisis.

BATTLE REPORT — General Paul D. Adams, ranking military officer of the U.S. mission, is supporting Nehru's arms request.

In his report to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the commander of the U.S. Army Strike Command said the extra military forces are needed because of the tremendous border India must protect.

General Adams attributed India's military reversals to (1) poor defense planning and strategy; (2) shortage of troops and arms at key defense positions; and (3) lack of fire power.

He said his mission found that the Indian Javans (troops) had done a good job of fighting, but that in all engagements they were heavily outnumbered by the Chinese invaders.

India's casualties were listed at between 10,000 and 11,000, with about one-third of these troops killed. An estimated 3,000 Indians have been captured and the rest injured.

Chinese Communist casualties are believed to total about 15,000 troops. The Chinese are estimated to have committed around 40,000 troops so far. They have some 125,000 along the border area.

The Chinese troops have attacked in winter uniforms. They also have used alpine equipment — including sleds — to haul mortars and mountain artillery.

These preparations indicate the Chinese began their big military push through the Himalayas after more than a year of careful planning, according to Adams' report.

INDIA WAR FLASHES — India is going to press production of an Indian-designed fighter, the HF-24, to supply its long-range aircraft needs. It will be produced at India's state-owned Hindustan Aircraft factory at Bangalore. . . . U.S. military intelligence discounts those reports that Russia forced the cease-fire in India by threatening to cut off China's oil and gasoline supply.

SOCIAL WHIRL — The New York State Society in Washington apparently believes in being well forehanded in planning. Although winter is just getting underway, the New York State Society already has chosen its Cherry Blossom princess. She is Elizabeth Ann Miller, daughter of Representative William Miller, who is also Republican National Chairman. A student at Newton College of the Sacred Heart, Newton, Mass., Miller will represent her home state in the capital's annual cherry blossom festival. . . . Chief Justice Earl Warren's current main topic of conversation is his latest grandchild — the son of his daughter Virginia and news-caster John Daly.

Strunks Wish To Plead Guilty

THE Strunk brothers of Anokim have told authorities they wish to plead guilty to burglary charges stemming from their unsuccessful break-in at the Town and Country Supper Club, Meadow Ave. and River St., Scranton, early Monday.

Samuel, 20, who was caught Tuesday night at his home, admitted implication at a hearing yesterday before Magistrate David B. Miller. He was held without bail and joined his brother, Harold, 28, at Lackawanna County Prison.

Detective Capt. James McDonnell said arrangements are being made to have the brothers present their pleas to court on Monday.

Samuel told Magistrate Miller he escaped police by rolling down an embankment after a warning shot was fired by Patrolman Eugene Genell.

He said he really thought he had been hit by the bullet, but learned it was perspiration and not blood at the back of his head.

Harold, father of six children, was caught in the cellar of the night spot by police who responded to a burglar alarm.

The brothers told police they staged the break in because Harold, a clerk in the Monroe County sheriff's office, needed money to pay off debts. Samuel, employed as a foreman by a Stroudsburg area tree trimming firm for the past six weeks, recommended the supper club. He said he had seen a lot of cars parked there in visits to his in-laws in Scranton.

The younger brother told the magistrate he drove directly home after he scrambled to his car, parked about two blocks away.

Investigators learned Samuel was "in a state of shock" from being shot at and nearly caught. He reportedly ran into three trees in his haste to get away.

Harold has served a six-month sentence for house burglary, according to police. Samuel has no police record.

Algeria Recharts Government

ALGIERS (AP)—The Algerian republic recharts its course in world affairs Thursday by outlawing the Communist party.

The decision, disclosed by the information minister, Mohamed Hadj Hamou, at a news conference, appeared to mean a veering away from a pro-Eastern position to a more truly neutral policy, if not a somewhat pro-Western attitude.

It seemed to reflect realization within the leadership of the young republic that Algeria cannot count on the Eastern bloc for direly needed economic aid, but must rather look to the West, and above all to France, for help.

Hamou said the decision was reached several days ago by Premier Ahmed Ben Bella's government. Only recently, Ben Bella went out of his way to emphasize friendship for Cuban leader Fidel Castro, with laudatory statements and a visit to Havana.

The Communist ban was announced on the eve of top-level negotiations between Algeria and France for large-scale financial and technical aid. Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammed Khemisti is flying to Paris on Friday at the head of a large official delegation to open the negotiations.

It also came on the eve of a resumption of negotiations with the United States on an economic aid program. Contacts between Washington and Algiers had been dropped after Ben Bella's visit to Havana and during the Cuban crisis.

Khemisti, in an interview with the French paper Le Monde, said Algeria's treasury needs to count on help from France. He also said any revision of the earlier agreements should be worked out jointly between France and Algeria.

Under accords of last March, establishing the independence of Algeria, France agreed to furnish Algeria economic aid in return for guarantees to European settlers. France also retained military bases in Algeria for a fixed term. Algerian nationalists have recently launched a campaign for the removal of certain clauses which they regard as an infringement on their new sovereignty.

Outlawing the Communist party also puts Algeria in line with policies long followed by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. Although that country has sought and obtained Soviet economic and military aid, Nasser has never permitted any local Communist movement to exist.

Nuclear Test Underground

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nuclear test of low yield was conducted underground yesterday by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Nevada test site.

This was the 57th announced test in the Nevada series which began Sept. 15, 1961. A low-yield test, as the AEC uses the term, means one with an explosive force of 20,000 tons or less of TNT.

Red Chinese Invade India 'In Thousands—Like Ants'

TEZPUR, India (AP)—"They came in thousands, like ants—how long could we go on killing?"

This is how one Indian officer, who finally led a small band of troops out of a trap, describes the Chinese Communist attacks along the Himalayan mountain frontier.

A high-ranking Indian officer said the massive Communist attacks were similar to those the Chinese used to crash across the Yalu River and drive south in the Korean War.

The officer said Indian troops reacted just as the Americans did at first—fought well amid terrible confusion, killed Chinese until ammunition ran out, and then fell back.

Not all were able to fall back far enough because—as in Korea—the Chinese masterfully developed a huge pincer-like encirclement, netting a large number of Indian troops. Some of these are still filtering back.

Another officer said the Chinese are still full of dawn attacks—when the defenders' alertness is at its lowest point.

As in Korea, the Chinese carefully selected routes of attack and threw in overwhelming numbers against Indian army units spread thin to cover all the passes.

Some of the survivors said the Chinese must have sent agents banning of the Association of Victims of the Nazis. Counsel for the government said the group had been taken over by Communists and was engaged in unconstitutional activity. They alleged the group, which claims 30,000 members, is directed by the Red regime in East Germany.

The Soviet notes added weight to a massive propaganda campaign by Communists against the

into the mountains years ago to enable them to direct the troop movements.

"It is impossible to move through these mountains as fast as the Chinese did unless you have perfect knowledge of the terrain," an officer said. "And the Chinese moved fast."

As in Korea, the Chinese moved light, carrying only weapons and small bags of rice. The Chinese wore light sneakers and padded quilt trousers and jackets to facilitate their movement.

Indian officers express confidence today that the Chinese will find a different situation if they try to advance farther south, across the plain where Indian tanks and artillery can be used.

In the mountains, the Chinese had hundreds of mortars—the use of which was developed to a fine art in Korea. Indian officers said mortars were the most effective Chinese weapons.

Survivors, however, again and again stressed the shock power of an attack by hundreds of massed Chinese and the bewilderment caused by lightning envelopments.

Indian officers are banking on airlifted automatic weapons from Britain and the United States to provide firepower if fighting is resumed.

The Chinese border war against India is following dictates long ago published by Communist guerrilla tacticians: Chase your terrain carefully, make the enemy fight your type of war, and then hit soft spots with overwhelming power. And so far it has worked.

Reds, Soviet To Eye Workers

MOSCOW (AP)—The Communist party and the Soviet government yesterday ordered into effect an inspection system making every workman a watchman against cheating and poor workmanship.

This implements a decision reached by the party's Central Committee last week. A joint state-party control or inspection system was set up for all production in the Soviet Union.

Alexander Shelepin, 44, former director of the secret police, has been put in charge of it.

This inspection system is one of the major agencies by which the government hopes to speed production, get the most out of every worker and trap embezzlers.

Every worker and every executive clearly is expected to keep watch on all his fellows, even while he himself is under the scrutiny of official and party watchers.

Shelepin is considered one of the most coldly brilliant men in

The House Of The Week

Bold Living Room Highlights Two-Story

By JULES LOH
THE soaring roof line of this house is a tipoff there's something unusual inside. You won't be disappointed. It's a dramatic raised living room, and the graceful exterior is only one of its exciting effects.

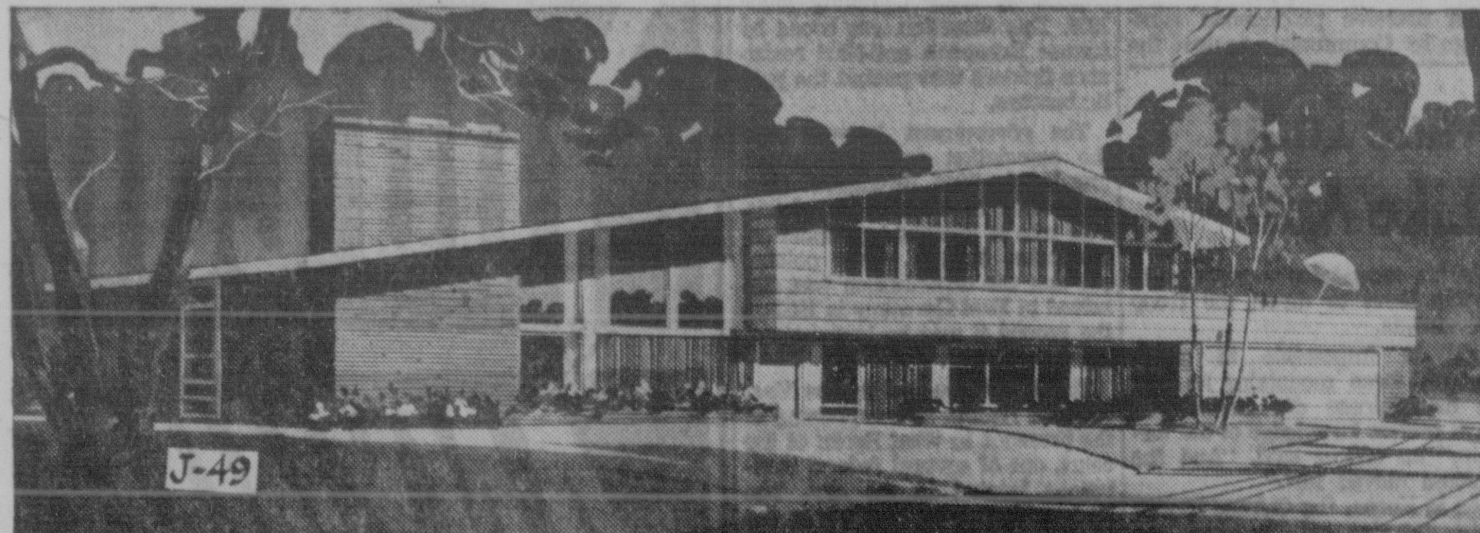

The house clearly is classified as a two-story. But it has a split-level variation in that the living room, at the extreme left, is four steps up from the downstairs level. The room has an assortment of features of the kind unseen in all but the most imaginative two-story designs.

Throughout the house, in fact, the design is characterized by a crisp freshness. It contains four bedrooms, all on the upstairs floor, two full baths plus a downstairs lavatory, and a number of other features such as a rear entry mudroom and an upstairs sun deck which make the house truly livable.

It is design J-49 in the House of the Week series, the product of architect Samuel Paul. One of Paul's most intriguing (as well as cost-reducing) innovations is his treatment of cellar space. The basement is located only under the raised living room, enabling it to be lifted out of the ground enough to provide full natural light and ventilation—the same principle used in the new bi-level type of construction.

The entry foyer is roomy enough to prevent congestion, has more than adequate coat closet space, and is perfectly placed so that you can go to any room in the house without having to pass through another.

Equally efficient is the rear entry, a well designed "decontamination chamber," as architect Paul calls it, which also serves the garage entry. The lavatory (as well as the laundry) is located in this area so it is convenient not only to the kitchen and family room but also to the outdoor play area and garage workbench.

The kitchen likewise is a model of well ordered design. It has one full wall, away from the work area, for an informal dining arrangement. Two pairs of easy-to-open sliding windows are over the double-bowl sink to provide natural light and good backyard supervision. Counter space is abundant; there are plenty of cabinets; and note the pantry space in the adjoining service area.

Speaking of storage space, take a look at the upstairs closet area. There are 18 linear feet of hanging space in the master bedroom alone.

The most dramatic feature upstairs, however, is the spacious deck over the entire 19 feet by 21 feet six inch garage which ad-

Fire Chiefs Are Alarmed

FIRE chiefs in many communities are alarmed at the re-appearance of combustible roofing on many new homes, according to a report taken by the National Fire Protection Association.

In a recent five-year period, the NFPA points out, wind-borne sparks on roofs caused more than 62,000 serious fires which resulted in damages totaling nearly $40,000,000.

The worst tragedy of these fires, says the NFPA, is that practically all of them could have been prevented with fire-resistant roofing material.

One of the big reasons flying sparks are so dangerous is that they can come from so many sources common to every neighborhood and community—a neighbor's trash burner, a brush fire, incinerators, fireplaces, fire in a nearby home, a defective furnace, and many others.

Firemen who have fought roof fires caused by wind-blown sparks say they can't understand why home owners choose to gamble with combustible roofs when fire-resistant roofing—such as asphalt shingles—is so readily available.

Asphalt shingles are fire resistant primarily because a coating of millions of rock granules provides a barrier to the fire—as well as to weather. A flaming brand of spark on an asphalt shingle roof will burn itself out without damage to the roof or to the house it protects, just as a similar brand would burn out harmlessly atop a stone wall.

Asphalt shingles can be applied quickly and efficiently by roofers everywhere, resulting in low application costs.

Of importance to the home owner is the fact that fire insurance premiums may be lower on houses with asphalt shingle roofs than on homes roofed with combustible materials.

Heating System Check Advised

SOMETIME during the summer months the house heating boiler should be cleaned and checked so that it will be ready when the next heating season begins. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau suggests that householders lose no time in making arrangements with a competent heating contractor for a prompt servicing of the heating system.

Keep Oil Tank Filled

HOUSEHOLDERS with oil burning heating systems are advised by the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau to keep the oil storage tank full of oil during the summer. This will prevent corrosion of the tank.

Art Center Launched By TV Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $100,000 private gift presented on a two-hour closed-circuit television extravaganza Thursday launched a national fund-raising drive to build a $30-million National Cultural Center here.

But there was some reported griping among defense contractors whose representatives complained they were pressured to attend a White House meeting at which President Kennedy urged them to support the drive.

As a galaxy of Hollywood, Broadway and concert stage stars waited across the country to get into the act, the big kickoff gift was announced by Roger Stevens, chairman of the center's board of trustees.

It came from a wealthy investment banker and oil operator, Col. C. Michael Paul. He's the Palm Beach, Fla., neighbor who kept President and Mrs. Kennedy his home for their 1961 Christmas vacation.

Paul made the contribution—biggest so far to the proposed cultural center—in memory of his wife, Josephine Bay Paul. Mrs. Paul, who died last August, was president of A. M. Kidder Co.

Stevens announced further projects to help raise the money needed to build the showplace for the performing arts on the Potomac. He said schools, clubs and unions were being asked to endow the 6,500 seats in the center's theater, opera house and concert hall at $1,000 per seat.

President and Mrs. Kennedy were billed as the leadoff performers on the telecast beamed to crowds gathered at fund-raising events in 60 cities across the nation. The scene for the first family's appearance was a $100-a-plate dinner at the National Guard armory here.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in Augusta, Ga., took the role of anchor man to close the two-hour late evening show.

It was hoped Thursday night's "American Pageant of the Arts" would raise $1 million.

$15,000 Cargo Is Hijacked

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A $15,000 cargo of coffee was hijacked from a tractor-trailer stolen during the night, police reported Tuesday.

Police in nearby Sloan said the vehicle was taken from a railroad freight yard there. The trailer, empty of its 770 cases of coffee, was found at a service station in Orchard Park.

the mid-50s, topcoats were doffed by more rugged residents.

The mild spell is scheduled to continue at least through today and probably through Saturday.

U.S. Weather Bureau observers do not officially recognize Indian Summer. But many persons give that title to a mild spell which follows snowfall and other wintry conditions which have been prevalent throughout the area.

The Poconos residents enjoyed the unseasonable weather, invading en masse, shopping centers and stores in Monroe County.

Goddard Asked To Remain

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Maurice Goddard, Pennsylvania's secretary of forests and waters, said Wednesday he hasn't been asked by Gov.-elect William W. Scranton to remain in the cabinet.

"Nobody has contacted me," Goddard told a reporter after a meeting here of the Delaware River Basin Commission. He said he had never met Scranton, but would remain as head of the department if asked.

"I'm a career man and not a politician," he declared. "I started a job to create new state parks and I want to finish it."

Goddard, former dean of Pennsylvania State University's forestry department, was first appointed to the cabinet by former Gov. George M. Leader, a Democrat.

Anthracite Sets 1964 Track Opener

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Officials of Anthracite Raceways, Inc., said Thursday they have set the opening of their harness track in Luzerne County for July 1, 1964, but the site has not yet been chosen for the plant.

Ross Miller, executive secretary of the group, which holds the sole harness racing permit in Luzerne County, said the directors met in his office Wednesday and discussed present status of the track.

Miller said the announcement concerning the opening date was being made to clear up some misunderstandings. In some quarters, he said, it had been reported the track would open next year.

Anthracite Raceways, of which Victor C. Diehm is president, plan a harness racing track with a capacity of about 20,000 which will cost several million dollars.

State Highway Needs Listed

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence said Thursday it will cost the state $250 million a year to complete the Commonwealth's road system within 12 years.

"It is a rock bottom estimate, not an ideal or an engineer's fantasy," the governor said in remarks prepared for presentation to the Pennsylvania Highway Information Association (PHIA).

The governor addressed a PHIA dinner honoring Highway Secretary Park H. Martin.

"No administration—regardless of its political inclinations or colorations—can afford to let Pennsylvania's highway construction and reconstruction programs fall below that level," he declared.

The governor praised Martin as "Pennsylvania's most brilliant highways secretary."

World Films Will Present 3rd In Series On Saturday

"CRY. The Beloved Country", the third selection of this season's series of World Films, will be presented Saturday night at 8:15 at East Stroudsburg State College auditorium.

The film is a compelling story of faith and the strange workings of destiny. A simple country preacher is drawn to the slums of Johannesburg in search of his son. There, amid a squalor unknown in the outlying country areas with which he is familiar, he finds the human degradation caused by crowding underpaid mine workers into insufficient space.

His son has become a marauder and is in prison accused of murder. Hovering over everything is the unhealthy atmosphere of a racially segregated country.

Canada Lee portrays the preacher in a sensitive moving performance. The photography was done in the countryside and slums of South Africa. Also to be shown is "Visit to Picasso", a short on the controversial giant of modern art.

Here are seen works of his creative genius in the evolution of his art, commencing with the naturalism shown in paintings done at the age of fourteen.

Here, also, are examples of the variety of the skills of the great artisan - as draftsman, painter, sculptor, maker of ceramics - at work in his rustic Mediterranean village cottage.

Work Slated To Start On State Track

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — A formal ground-breaking ceremony signaled the official start of construction Thursday on the first pari-mutuel horse racing track in Western Pennsylvania.

Site of the harness racing plant will be a one-time farm off Route 19 about five miles north of Washington.

It will be operated by the Washington Trotting Association, a publicly financed corporation organized by Washington County businessmen.

Target time for completion of the track is early next June. The Pennsylvania Racing Commission has assigned the track 50 racing dates, starting June 28 and ending Aug. 24.

All-Weather Strip
Delvin Miller of nearby Meadow Lands, a nationally known harness racing driver, trainer and breeder, is president of the association. Feature of the five-eighths of a mile oval will be an all-weather running strip, said to be the first of its kind in the country. This strip will be surfaced with a rubberized plastic repellent to water. Plans call for stands to accommodate some 10,000 spectators. The track is one of four licensed in the state. The others are in Eastern Pennsylvania.

Deer Exam Stations To Be Operated

THE Pennsylvania Game Commission announces that a number of deer examination stations will be operated throughout the state during the first week of buck season. Game Commission research biologists will be on hand to conduct the operations and secure the data.

These examinations will serve a number of purposes. It will enable the biologists to determine the age composition of the deer herd, the presence or absence of disease, antler development, weight to age ratio and secure other valuable information.

The facts secured from these examinations will be of considerable assistance in continuing to plan proper management of Pennsylvania's vast deer herd.

Support Asked
Successful hunters are requested to take their deer to one of the stations for examination. Five to ten minutes is all the time that is required to examine a deer. The deer will be weighed, his antlers measured and his teeth will be examined to determine his age.

Ray W. Trexler, Northeast Division Supervisor, states that the examination station in this division will be located three and a half miles northwest of Tunkhannock on Routes 6 and 300.

The station will be operated during the first week of the antlered deer season, Dec. 3 to Dec. 8, inclusive, from 7 a.m. until 12 midnight each day. The station will be well marked with signs. Another station will be located 10 miles north of Lewisburg between Allenwood and White Deer on Route 15.

While participation in this examination is completely voluntary, Trexler urges successful sportsmen to cooperate to the best of their ability.

Electrical Workers End GE Walkout

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The Electrical workers union Thursday signaled the end of a two-day walkout at the General Electric Co. that a union official said was a protest over unresolved grievances.

John Stanley, business agent for Local 320 of the International Union of Electrical Workers, said the final group of workers involved in the walkout had returned to their jobs.

The walkout, the second in two weeks, involved more than 1,200 workers in three departments. It began about noon Tuesday.

GE said the walkout was the 18th this year.

Stanley said the present contract with GE left the local with no other recourse but to resort to frequent walkouts to protest grievances that could not be arbitrated.

The contract, Stanley said, "invites strikes."

A GE spokesman countered that the contract was a national agreement between the company and the union and, therefore, the local should take up any dissatisfaction over the contract with the national union. The 3-year contract runs until Sept. 29, 1963, the spokesman said.

The Daily Investor

Checking Quotations

By William A. Doyle

Q. I am a member of an investment club. For the first four years of the club's existence we received a great deal of help from a representative of a leading brokerage firm. For the past year or so we have made our investment decisions on our own, with occasional questions to and help from that brokerage house.

The brokerage firm still keeps all our records, has custody of our stock certificates for safe-keeping, handles our money and performs many other services for us. I doubt that the brokerage firm makes any money on our account.

Some of our members think that, before we buy stocks at prices quoted by that broker, we should call other brokers to see if our broker is quoting us the best possible prices. Is it legitimate? If so, is it wise? Are the quotations apt to differ? Would we gain anything in knowledge or in money?

A. It's perfectly legitimate. Whether it is wise or unwise depends on how you break the news to the broker who now handles your business. He just might be miffed and might have some second thoughts about performing all those services for you. Then again, he might be happy because his efforts have turned you into a bunch of sharp thinkers.

If you do go through with your plan, make sure that two or more members of your club call different brokers at exactly the same time. Surely, as members of an investment club, you should know that stock prices do change—often from one minute to the next.

If the stock about which you inquire is traded on a stock exchange, the brokers will tell you the latest price at which the stock traded and, most likely, the current bid and asked prices. Assuming that all the brokers you call are reputable and that they all have the same quotation facilities (stock tickers, etc.) they will all quote the same prices on the same stocks at the same time.

If the stock is not traded on a stock exchange but is traded in the over-the-counter market, you may get slightly different quotations on the same stock from one broker to another. When you deal in the "counter" market, you must have faith in your broker.

Your club members seem certain to gain some additional knowledge. And that should be a prime purpose of any investment club. You may or may not gain money.

Q. Just what did you mean by that crack "before Kennedy lowered the boom"? That's a terrible thing to say.

A. Wow! That one line in a recent column (which noted that the market price of U. S. Steel common stock had fallen way down) is drawing more mail than this battered old typewriter has seen in a long time.

It's hard to believe that anyone with eyes and ears was unaware of the Dannybrook between the Kennedy Administration and major American steel companies.

When U. S. Steel announced an increase in steel prices (and other producers followed suit) last spring, President Kennedy blew his stack. In the resulting furor the companies cut back their steel prices.

Since that time many steel companies have been caught in a price squeeze. There have been a number of dividend cuts. This is all history.

The line with which you are unhappy was simply a takeoff on the song, "Clancy Lowers the Boom." Now, let's not have a batch of letters accusing me of being anti-Irish. I was brought up to the tune.

"Remember boy, you're Irish, though not born on Irish soil. Your mother was a Murtha and your father is a Doyle."

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

LEGGIER'S

Just Between Us—

The older one grows the more we seem to rely on clichés as a sort of short-hand conversation. "Small world" we term coincidences; "My, how you've grown," we greet teenagers; and "How time flies," we confide to each other.

Well, it is and they have and it does; and we feel no embarrassment at remarking on the obvious since the obvious keeps right on proving itself all the time. Take "There's nothing succeeds like success," for instance. Everybody loves to be part of a successful undertaking; and, contrariwise, some of the pleasure in a program, no matter how fine it may be in itself, is spoiled if the size of the audience is disappointing.

A small crowd at a dance may leave all the more room for dancing, but the disappointment of the committee and a vicarious indignation at all the people who could have come but didn't definitely casts a damper on the festivities.

That's why the audience at the Stroud Community Women's Club fashion show, wending their way up the green-garlanded stairway at the college into a dining room which seemed to hold thousands of people all talking at once, were receptive and ready to enjoy themselves before the fashion show even started.

As a matter of fact the audience could have done some pretty fancy modeling themselves. With newly-coiffured hair and dangling ropes of pearls and their best bib and tucker, they were taking on chances on feeling sort of shabby and forlorn, the way your old pair of shoes look when you have to put them back on after trying on new shoes in a shoe store.

Well, anyway the show justified the feeling of excitement and was well-arranged even to the box decorated with red paper and green grapes from which the winners of the "Twelve Gifts of Christmas" were drawn.

But speaking of the "Gifts of Christmas," the United Council of Church Women has again chosen the Christmas shopping season to arrange that the sanctuaries of two churches in the mid-town section of both towns: the Presbyterian in Stroudsburg and the Methodist in East Stroudsburg, be open every weekday from 11 to 2 for Advent prayers.

No music, no program, no pressure — nothing but you, laden as you may be with Christmas packages, harassed minds and aching feet — and a quiet sanctuary where you can grow still and find the inner peace that comes from realizing again the obvious — what this gift-giving and getting is all about, and why.

When you are using oranges in a fruit compote you may wish to prepare them so they are in membrane-free sections; another way to treat the orange is to cut off the skin so no white membrane remains, then cut in rather thick round slices and dice.

Candles, Brocades Shine At Stroud Club Fashion Show

Lighted candles and greens on the tables at the college dining room, a full complement of guests, and gold brocades glittering on the runway made the Stroud Community Women's Club Holiday Fashion Show a gala one on Thursday night.

With Sally Ferree in a turquoise brocade sultan's coat with a rajah type pin on her forehead as commentator, and Lou Hayward, former accompanist with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians providing the musical background, the show opened with Waring's arrangement of "The Magic of Christmas."

The fashions from Frances Burrows could have served as copybook axioms of the couture fashion forecasts of summer arriving on Main Street. From the bulky sweaters and pants and casual costumes of the first part of the show to the metallic brocades, chiffons of wool evening dresses of the second half they demonstrated the easy fit of high fashions.

Lower waistlines, longer jackets, overblouses and the overblouse look, set in sleeves, shifts and the rajah look were all exemplified in the showing.

Serving as models were Robin Schuetz, Joyce Haswell, Jo McDowell, Jay Mullins, Barbara Samet, Elsie Odzer, Joan Montgomery, Georgia Lichtenberg and Helen Diamond.

During the intermission Lisa Williams, a student at the college, entertained with folk songs, accompanying herself on the guitar. The songs included English ballads, Calypso, cowboy and yodels.

Mrs. John Sibley, chairman, welcomed the near-capacity crowd which was served pastries and coffee before the show. Proceeds are to be used for the club's welfare projects.

Pioneers In Buckskin At Pack Meeting

Swiftwater — "Buckskin Pioneers" will be the theme of the meeting of Cub Pack 95 to be held tonight at 7 at the Paradise Municipal Building.

The boys will model the costumes they have made themselves. All parents and friends are invited.

Grandma's cut-glass berry dish still makes berries look exceptionally attractive! It's also excellent to use for trifles — that English dessert concoction of sponge cake or lady fingers, fresh or canned fruit and custard sauce.

Let's talk Fashion

Forgive us if we preen a bit. Well, it was a good fashion show we put on for the Stroud Community Club and bore out what we so often say "Now this doesn't look like much on the hanger but—" Frumpieries may look very well on a hanger but that isn't where you wear a dress. Really good fashion—depending on line, cut and color—needs a woman inside to do it justice.

Wouldn't it be nice, we sometimes think wishfully, if we could have all those models on tap, like the couture designers, and our customers could sit and have the dresses modeled for them any old day? But then again we're glad you have to try them on yourself—so we can see how they look on you.

We're confident of the rightness of our fashions in general, but in particular we want to be sure that particular fashion is right for YOU—and to tell you the truth we sort of enjoy having you put on an impromptu fashion show for us. When we're all happy about your selection, it gives us a kind of vicarious share in the fun you're going to have wearing it.

Delegate Assembly Awards Girl Scout Statuette To Mrs. LeRoy Koehler

Mrs. LeRoy J. Koehler, who, as the first president of revived Monroe County Council of Girl Scouts, played a large part in putting Scouting on a county-wide basis was honored at the first annual Delegate Assembly of the newly created Scranton-Pocono Scout Council.

Mrs. Koehler was presented with the Scout version of an Oscar: A Girl Scout Statuette engraved "1962—For Service to Girls," at the assembly held in November at the Girl Scout House in Scranton. The Delegate membership of the new council includes 144 delegates from 19 neighborhoods in five districts. Chartered Nov. 8, 1961, the council has jurisdiction over more than 8,300 registered Girl Scouts and adult members.

Mrs. Koehler was one of eight honorary members of the Council to receive these first awards.

This is also the annual voting meeting of the delegates with Mrs. Harry Reese, council president, presiding. Other Monroe County delegates active in the assembly included:

Mrs. J. L. Cohen who was named assistant secretary; Mrs. Harry Heller who was elected to the board for a three year term; Mrs. Elmer Veety who was named to the nominating committee for a three year term.

Mrs. William Wyckoff, Stroudsburg, vice president, swore in the delegates and led them in their pledge to adhere to the principles of the Girl Scout organization, to dedicate themselves to the purpose of inspiring girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service that they might become happy, resourceful citizens.

The purpose of the Assembly is to help the board in determining the general lines of direction for Girl Scouting in the Council and to act as a resource group for the board.

Those unable to attend but sending gifts were Mrs. John Staples, Mrs. Earl Carlton, Mrs. Delbert Davis, Mrs. Henry Kulp, Mrs. P. A. Rockefeller, Mrs. Wm. Fisher, Mrs. Robert Kaiser, Mrs. Robert Richards, Miss Nellie E. Burd, Mrs. Roy Carrescia and Mrs. Ben Geshensky.

Local College Expansion To Graduate, Liberal Arts Level Theme Of AAUW

In the midst of the greatest expansion the local college has ever known, its president, Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, has been asked by the Stroudsburg Branch of the American Assn. of University Women to speak at their meeting on Monday night on "Trends in Pennsylvania State Colleges."

In addition to expansion in numbers and its physical plant, East Stroudsburg State College is also expanding its scope. During the past summer, the college admitted its first students for graduate work. Programs in the liberal arts are waiting only the formal notice of approval from the Pennsylvania Department of Instruction and the State Council of Education.

Dr. Koehler received his A. B. from Pennsylvania State University, an A. M. from the University of Pennsylvania and a Ph.D. from the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of New York University. He served as head of the Social Studies Department at the college before being named its president.

It will be a dessert meeting to begin at 7 p.m. at the Stroud Community House with Mrs. Wendell Wicks and Mrs. Evan Reese as co-chairmen of the Christmas refreshments.

The meeting is open to all those interested.

If some members of your family do not drink all the milk they should (for good nutrition) each day, serve cream soups often. You can provide 1/2 to 1 cup milk per serving in these soups. Use flavoring bases — for example, tomato, clam, oyster, spinach — that your family enjoys.

Holiday GIFT CENTER

742 Main Street, Stbg.

Remember Parkyakarkas on the radio a few decades ago? As I recall, I was never particularly amused by his type of humor, yet doggone it, everytime I hear the word "Parka" I think of him. And I've been hearing that word a lot around here lately, because Bill Wells has stocked up on some of the finest parkas and suburban coats ever to be offered at a lowly 10.00, particularly RIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

I can recall a few years back when it was quite common for women to say, "I'm beginning my Christmas shopping very early this year... before the stores mark up their merchandise." A statement like this sets me chuckling now, because if ever there was a time when merchandise WASN'T marked up, it's right before the holidays, thanks to all the competition. These parkas and coats for boys, for instance, are actually made to retail at 12.98 and 14.98. They are handsome, and very fine quality. Some have split, zippered hoods... some have detachable hoods... some are twill and neoprene wool. Linings are of orlon pile, and the color selection is a fine one: antelope, black, charcoal, blue, and loden, sizes 6 to 20.

Bill tells me these are a special purchase, and while he stocked a large supply in order to offer them at this ridiculous, thrifty price, they have been selling steadily ever since their initial appearance on our Boys' department racks Wednesday. If you are interested, perhaps you should see them today. Don't risk disappointment by waiting!

Sometimes we receive special merchandise with the "look of elegance" in a very limited quantity, just to see how it will sell, and what demand it will create if any. That is why Bea Gorgy stocked only a few cropped jackets in black velvet and black "fake broadtail" both with collars of rabbit, dyed jet, at 19.50. Take it from me, they're GOING. The women love them... they look so precious, cost so little, and are so pleasant a way of keeping one's shoulders warm in a drafty ballroom or auditorium.

Another "look of elegance" with the price tag of thrift may be found in Bea's handbag department—very good quality copies of petit point bags, priced as low as 5.00 and up to about 10.98, I believe. The 5.00 bags are very appealing, I think — not too large, square in shape, and dangling from golden chains—just the right size to manage comfortably at the theatre or dinner. (Or on any occasion when one wishes one's hands free for holding!)

P.S. You know, of course, that a petit point bag about the size of our 5.00 ones would cost approximately 75.00, if it were the genuine article! In any case, these are imported from France and have a silken label inside that says so.

You are bright, use that fine trait well, for in all undertakings you will find results, keenly of either well-directed or misdirected interest. The quiet answer — never the abrupt one — should be your motto. This Sign excels in enterprise, money-making, grasping opportunity. It knows the value of knowledge. Soviet Farms Harboring Pros?

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet collective farms were accused yesterday of maintaining professional football teams, rather than investing their money in farm equipment.

The accusation was made by official party newspaper Pravda, which said this was happening in a number of places. It singled out for criticism a farm in the Slavansk district of the Krasnodar territory, near the Black Sea.

Baker Hopes To Improve On Last Year's Record

COACH Dale Baker, new head of the East Stroudsburg Cavalier basketball squad, hopes to improve on last season's record of six wins and 11 setbacks while naming Wilson Boro as "the team to beat in the Lehigh-Northampton League."

"We looked a little ragged in our opener" (against Wallenpaupack Tuesday night), he exclaimed yesterday, while adding that this was not unexpected since several of the boys just recently joined the team after finishing the football season.

Among these are Jimmy Steele, Jack Van Horn and Mike Boushell. Earl Palmer, who missed most of the grid season with a leg injury, is expected to be ready for the cage wars by early January.

Seven Seniors

All these boys are among seven seniors in Baker's array of starting hopefuls who have one win already chalked up for this season with their 49-48 verdict over Wallenpaupack.

The other seniors are Bill Williams, Harold Kimball and Ron Fish.

Several juniors also are expected to see plenty of action this year, too. They include the likes of Doug Hilyard, Russ Scott, Mike Snelnik, Bob Brimer, Fred Courtright and Bill Reese. Courtright, at 6-4½, represents the tallest boy on the team. Van Horn, at 6-2, is the tallest member of the starting five.

Good Look-Over

In Tuesday's opener, the combo of Reese, Steele, Scott, Van Horn and Williams played the most as a unit, but whether this will remain as the starting quintet is another matter. Baker, who is just getting acquainted with all the members of the team, is still giving all the boys a good look-over.

The Cavaliers resume court action next Tuesday when they entertain the Pleasant Valley Bears. The rest of the schedule reads:

The Schedule
Dec. 11—Delaware Valley, away; Dec. 18—Lehigh, home; Dec. 21—Paupack, home; Dec. 22—Stroudsburg, home; Dec. 28—Wilson, home.

Jan. 4—Hellertown, home; Jan. 8—Pocono Mountain, home; Jan. 11—Bangor, away; Jan. 18—Pen Argyl, away; Jan. 25—Nazareth, home; Jan. 29—Pocono Mountain, away.

Feb. 1—Wilson, away; Feb. 5—Hellertown, away; Feb. 8—Bangor, home; Feb. 12—Pen Argyl, home; Feb. 15—Nazareth, away; and Feb. 16—Stroudsburg, away.

The recording was made by Joe Whalen, former program director of Radio Station WVPO and a former member of the local football officials' chapter.

Picks Navy, Trojans

By ROBERT MOORE Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — This is the toughest weekend of the college football season to pick the winners—not that every weekend isn't tough.

This final weekend of the regular 1962 campaign brings together old and bitter rivalries that could go either way Saturday regardless of past performances. In several cases, this is the game the various opponents have been pointing for all season long.

Anyway, here goes, and if you lose as a result, well, as the teenagers say, that's the way the ball bounces.

Tabs Middies

Navy over Army—Coach Paul Dietzel would give his right arm to beat the Middies in this his first season as boss of the Cadets but will have to wait at least another year.

Southern California over Notre Dame—Trojans are champions of Big Six and in Rose Bowl. Now they need a victory over the Irish to tighten their grip on ranking as nation's No. 1 team, a spot no West Coast team has achieved since Southern Cal in 1959.

Oklahoma over Oklahoma State —Cowboys haven't beaten bitter rival Sooners since 1945, and Oklahoma's much too hot to handle this year.

Georgia Tech over Georgia —Rambling Wreck has been rolling since midseason and is anxious to prove that triumph over Alabama was no fluke.

Picks TCU

Texas Christian over Southern Methodist — Sonny Gibbs and Horned Frogs still have hopes of landing a bowl bid.

Mississippi over Mississippi State — Sugar Bowl-bound Rebels need this one to become first Ole Miss team to go unbeaten in 70 years of college football.

UCLA over Utah—Utah isn't in the same class with UCLA. Alabama was embarrassed by that loss to Georgia Tech and wants to redeem itself, but don't be surprised if Auburn manhandles Crimson Tide.

Tennessee over Vanderbilt — Both teams have had sad seasons, but Vols will end theirs on a happy note.

Florida over Miami — George Mira's passing won't be enough to overcome Fighting Gators.

Florida A&M Small College Champions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS By the narrow margin of just one point, Florida A&M's all-conquering Rattlers were crowned Thursday the small college football champions of 1962 in The Associated Press' final poll.

In the final balloting by a national panel of eight sports writers, Florida A&M received two first-place votes and 67 points. Wittenberg, Ohio, University (9-0-0) was a point back with one first-place vote and 66 points. Central Oklahoma State (9-0-0) was third with two first-place votes and 54 points and Southern Mississippi (9-1-0) fourth with a first-place and 44 points.

The top ten:

	W	L	T	Pts.
1. Florida A&M (2)	9	0	0	67
2. Wittenberg (1)	9	0	0	66
3. Central Okla. (2)	9	0	0	54
4. Southern Miss. (1)	9	1	0	44
5. Lenoir-Rhyne	10	0	0	34
6. Texas A&I (1)	9	0	1	33
7. Northern Illinois	9	1	0	27
8. Fresno State	7	3	0	19

Set One All-Star Contest

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball players and club owners agreed Thursday to return to one All-Star Game a season and it was learned the game would be played at St. Paul-Minneapolis on July 9.

The return to one game, rumored since the World Series, was sealed when the club owners agreed that in the future the players pension fund would receive 95 per cent of all receipts, including radio and television monies, from the game, an increase of 35 per cent.

Commissioner Ford Frick said under the old 60-40 split, the club owners allocated all but 5 per cent of their 40 per cent for the minor league aid fund. This fund was abolished earlier Thursday under a minor league reorganization plan adopted in Rochester.

Frick said that the actual loss to the players would amount to about $30,000 a year for their pension fund.

Under the two All-Star Game schedule, in effect since 1959, the players realized an average of about $225,000 per game, for a $450,000 total. Taking 95 per cent of the receipts for one game, Frick said, the pension fund would receive an average of about $395,000.

"This will still be sufficient to keep the pension plan moving as planned," Frick said after a meeting of the player representatives and the club owners.

ESSC Cagers Feel Loss Of Veterans

EAST STROUDSBURG State College Basketball Coach Mort Hochheiser has his work cut out for him this season with the loss of his two co-captains of a year ago, Russ Hopewell and Scotty Weaver.

Hopewell was the team's leading scorer last season with 395 points in 21 games for an average of 18.8 per game. He also set a Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Conference record of most field goals in one game—connecting on 21 from the floor to surpass the previous high mark of 20 set by Jack Crossan of Indiana in 1956.

The Warriors last year also set a team mark of most field goals in a PSCAC game, swishing the cords for 51 against Cheyney.

9 And 11

Despite these superlative efforts, however, the ESSC quintet managed but nine wins against 11 losses. Hochheiser has hopes, however, of surpassing the .500 mark this year.

Back in the ESSC fold for this campaign are such court stalwarts as John Murphy, famed for his jump shot and who was second highest scorer on last year's team with 325 points, along with Will Pfeiffer, Jack Jones, Tom Gross, Cataldo (Sonny) Giumento and Burt Reese.

Gross, a Stroudsburg product, is regarded as a good rebounder who possesses a fine jump shot. At 6-5, he is one of the tallest members of the team, topped only by 6-6 sophomore Harvey

Brannan. He will be battling Giumento for a starting berth and both may possibly alternate frequently. Giumento, a 6-2 junior, has many fine moves from both the corner and pivot.

Fine Rebounder

A soft jump shot is Jones' forte, while Pfeiffer shoots much the same way but also is a fine rebounder.

Machen May Be Next Foe For Cassius

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Boxing promoter Abe Aquistapace said Thursday he will confer soon with Cassius Clay's manager in hopes of signing the young Louisville heavyweight for a fight against Eddie Machen in February in San Francisco.

Aquistapace offered Clay a $35,000 guarantee shortly after his fourth round knockout of Archie Moore on Nov. 15 in Los Angeles.

"William Faversham, one of Clay's managers and spokesman for the group, told me he will talk with us before anyone else in regard to a Machen fight," Aquistapace said. "Faversham said he thinks Machen is the next logical opponent for Clay."

Machen, originally from Redding, Calif., and now fighting out of Portland, is ranked behind champion Sonny Liston and ex-champ Floyd Patterson.

bounder. Hochheiser expects much of Pfeiffer this year.

On the defensive side, Reese is the team's standout performer. An excellent team player, Reese also is noted for his hustle.

Other boys expected to see action this year include John Ferguson, Paul Grube, John Petronis, Francis Reilly, Ron Reinhard and Guy Stewart.

The 21-game schedule, which gets under way tomorrow, reads: Dec. 1—Montclair, away; Dec. 5—Cheyney, home; Dec. 7—Bloomburg, away; Dec. 12—West Chester, home; Dec. 15—Shippensburg, away; Dec. 19—Scranton, away.

Jan. 5—Kutztown, home; Jan. 12—Millersville, away; Jan. 23—Trenton, away; Jan. 26—Philadelphia Textile, home; Jan. 30—Mansfield, home.

Feb. 2—Cheyney, away; Feb. 6—Bloomburg, home; Feb. 9—West Chester, away; Feb. 13—Shippensburg, home; Feb. 16—Kutztown, away; Feb. 20—Millersville, home; Feb. 23—Mansfield, away; Feb. 27—Fairleigh Dickinson, away, and March 2—Wilkes, home.

Lane-Brown Fight

MUSKOGON, Mich. (AP)—Top-rated lightweight contender Kenny Lane has been signed for a bout with ex-champion Joe Brown at New Orleans, the Muskegon southpaw's manager, Pete Petroskey, announced Thursday.

The bout will be held Dec. 31 or Jan. 1, Petroskey added.

Navy Rated Even Chance

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Free-wheeling Navy is rated an even chance in quest of its fourth straight service football victory Saturday over an Army team eager to end the drought under new Coach Paul Dietzel.

Shorn of frills like bowl possibilities and high national ranking, the 63rd meeting of the academics has boiled itself down to a battle of super-charged squads whose supporters have whipped themselves into a frenzy.

Adds Innovation
President John F. Kennedy will be on hand for the nationally televised game—CBS, 1:30 p.m., EST—to which he'll add an innovation. For the first time the chief executive will walk to the middle of the field for the coin toss between captains Steve Hoy of Navy and John Ellerson of Army.

While the game will offer a contrast between the Middles' prototype attack and the methodical Cadet running offense, the schools present many similarities. Three-unit substitution systems, squad weights, optimism, good physical shape and enthusiasm are very much alike.

Navy's Wayne Hardin can become the first coach in Annapolis history to beat Army four to end the Navy streak, hasn't let his Cadets forget their task for a moment. Army has won only two of the last eight and three of the past 12 meetings though it still leads the series 30-27-5.

Both Confident
In a three-way telephonic interview for Armed Services Radio and conducted by Air Force Academy Coach Ben Martin Thursday, Dietzel said:

"Old timers who have been on the post 35 to 40 years say the enthusiasm of the cadet corps this year is greater than they can ever remember. This team is more ready to play than it ever has been, is very loose and very confident."

"The kids are very high here," Hardin reported from Annapolis. "They are confident, feeling they are going to Philadelphia to cheer the team on to victory."

Wyckoff's has sweater magic... and we are planning to make the Christmas scene with the greatest sweater bagful of yarn tricks you ever saw. Our sweaters are wools, mohairs, orlon knits, and the finest Bernhard Altmann cashmeres. The cashmeres are priced from about 23.00. There are decorative cardigan styles, crew necks, V-necks, the classic shetlands, soft slip-ons with short or long sleeve. Mix and match colors in cardigan sets by Hickory House. And Bobbie Brooks has some of the most marvelous sweaters in delightful frosty looking pastels, hued skirts. All in all, we have the sweaters to make yours a wonderful Christmas... sweater magic for sizes 32 to 46. See our fabulous sweater collection on our second floor.
